Honoring the Six Triple Eight: A Delco250 Film Presentation and Discussion

Radnor Memorial Library welcomed a large audience for a special Delco250 event on Sunday, September 20, featuring a screening of Tyler Perry's The Six Triple Eight. Continuing the Library's summer film series, Remember the Ladies, the program honored the extraordinary contributions of the 6888th Central Postal Directory Battalion, the largest group of Black servicewomen to serve overseas during World War II.

The event grew from a suggestion by Colonel Arthur L. Jenkins, Jr., Director of Delaware County's Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, who visited the Library and proposed a community partnership to bring this important story to local audiences. The program was co-sponsored by the Delaware County Department of Military and Veterans Affairs, Radnor Memorial Library, Radnor Historical Society, and the League of Women Voters of Radnor Township.

Known as the Six Triple Eight, these remarkable women overcame significant barriers as they tackled a massive backlog of mail destined for American troops serving overseas during WWII. Their work was vital to military morale, as letters from home provided an essential connection to loved ones during wartime. Their dedication and perseverance helped ensure that thousands of service members received the mail they had been waiting for.

Following the well-attended screening, Colonel Jenkins led a discussion that gave attendees an opportunity to reflect on the film and the battalion's lasting legacy. As a memorial library dedicated to local men and women who served and lost their lives in World War II, Radnor Memorial Library was proud to partner with community organizations to share this inspiring story of service, resilience, and the enduring power of connection.

"I found your app at our local library this weekend. We have a mixed language household (Turkish and English) and it made me SO happy I almost cried. We can't wait to start using it. I also noticed that you just released Latvian--I'm half Latvian so I appreciate that as well. Thank you and keep up the awesome work!"

Welcome to VUnited Intern, Sean!
